John Eul is the principal of Business Solutions, a retail industry consultancy serving the National Association of Convenience Stores (NACS), the National Retail Federation (NRF), North American Association of State and Provincial Lotteries (NASPL) and the Uniform Code Council (UCC).

Mr. Eul is steering a major joint effort with NACS and the IFSF to establish global device interface standards for the retail and petroleum industries. He chairs the NACS EDI Lottery Committee, which has just completed and now is piloting XML/EDI implementation guidelines for settlement and control of lottery products and he also serves on the MIT Auto ID Center's ePC committee, which is involved in addressing the use of RFID technology in the retail supply chain.

Mr. Eul has over 30 years of experience in manufacturing, wholesaling and retailing industries and is a graduate of Roosevelt University with a degree in finance.
