

Gerald Thames
Executive Advisor
Booz Allen Hamilton

Jerry Thames brings to Booz Allen Hamilton over thirty-five years of leadership in both the public and private sector. At Booz he has managed the Integrated Identity cross market campaign.

Before joining the Booz Allen team as an Executive Advisor, Mr. Thames was the Counselor to the Director of the National Counter Terrorism Center (NCTC). At the NCTC, Mr. Thames was Counselor to the director and led the way in structuring and implementing business processes and interlocking leadership teams. His responsibilities also included managing five different areas of the National Implementation Plan for the Global War on Terror. He led and directed the interagency coordination group (ICG) that established the Counter-Terrorism Identity Management/Biometrics (IM/B) Strategic Framework which provided the framework for the US government standards for biometric technology, as well as established interagency goals for IM/B and terrorist screening, business processes for terrorist screening and biometric-enabled screening. Significantly, he played a critical leadership role in developing the presidential policy on the use of biometric technology in the government (National Security Presidential Directive 59/Homeland Security Presidential Directive 24).

Mr. Thames also supported our effort in Iraq by acting as senior advisor to the COO of the Coalition Provisional Authority. In this capacity, he oversaw the reconstruction plans for the telecommunications and transportation sectors

Prior to this, Mr. Thames was managing director of the Communications Fund for Lehman Brothers, CEO and President of the Global Telesystems Group, CEO of British Telecom North America, and was the General Manager for Network Services for AT&T.

Mr. Thames holds a BS and a MBA from Mississippi State University and a SM from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.
